

35/5. Χ Χαμδεις των εσθ' θραυης εσορουν
Αθηναια

The Olynthians break with Philip,
and make overtures to Athens B. C. 351

The text is from Köhler C.I. Aii 105: the marble found on the Akropolis is entire on top and right only

[Εἰς τὴν ἀρχὴν] οὐκ ἦν
οὐδὲ καὶ [τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον]
ἐν τῇ ἀρχῇ τῇ ἐκείνῃ,

[some of such a deme Myopites Jopiteras?

5. another of such a dense Palmaria Arvicis,

another of such a demagogue is Hagareus

another of such a dome  $\text{ἑξ. 1580, Πόριος}$

another of such a deme } I know Apophis

... ὡς ἐκφυγάν[τες] καὶ ἡλικίας ἐπαμειβόμενοι.

10 ὁ δὲ τὴν ἑξῆς ἡμέραν ἐξέταξε τὸ

δεῖνα εἶπεν· ὅπου ἐν ἐκδογὰς τοῦ

[5] определим.

It is a pity the document is not better preserved; but it is too interesting, even as it, to be omitted. The Slynthians, and the Chalkidian cities in league with them, having been crushed first by Sparta in 379 B.C., and afterwards by the Athenians under Timotheos in 367/66 (No 52)

A Manual
of Greek Historical Inscriptions
By E. L.
Hicks. M.A.

Box 202

1889

5. 183

Ἰαγυδεὺς γὰρ ἐστὶ Σπάρτης ἐνδεξιὺν

had afterwards by the pleasure of Philip
a certain measure of freedom from B.C. 355-4
until it suited Philip's convenience to make them in turn his vassals. In 352 they were so alarmed at his change of attitude that they threw up his alliance and united themselves with Athens. This is described by Demosthenes in Aristoc. p. 656 (a speech delivered between Midsummer and November 352; see E. G. Weber's ed. p. ix foll; and Græc. h. 88). Our fragment is part of a decree for the swearing

AKAΔΗΜΙΑ ACHINON

of the Alynthians and Chalkidians as allies.
The only archon of the time whose name will fit
the lacuna is Thesaios commonly named Thesaios
by the historians (see Rangabe Antiq. Hellén. p. 543).

The names of the ten commissioners who were to go and administer the oaths were enumerated at the head of the decree. Demosthenes (L.c.) speaks of the Alynthians in the autumn of 352 as already friends and promising to become allies of Athens. In the 1st Alynthiae (p. 10-11) it is said that Philip's own conduct had forced them into alliance:
this was probably spoken in B.C. 350 and
to this alliance our inscription refers.

Χαρις οἱ εἰς δράκοντος ἐσθέροι δ.Χ. 351.

The text is from C.I.A i 59 E i ch. Bechl Her. A Manual
mes, xi 378 fol.; Kirchhoff, Monatsb. d. Berl. of Greek Ak. 1861 p. 601 fol. Historical

Εἰς Γρανισσοῦ ἀρχοντος.

Λόβου ἐν Κηδῶν ἐγραμμάτευς.

ξ ι' ἔδωκεν τῇ θυτῇ καὶ τῷ θυγῇ. Ἰωσάδωντι.

ς ἐδωδάνει, Λόβου ἐγραμμάτευς Φημισίδη.

ς ἔδωδάνει, Γρανισσοῦ ἀρχοντος Ἰωσάδωντος.

ς ἔδωδάνει, Γρανισσοῦ ἀρχοντος Ἰωσάδωντος.

ΑΚΑΔΗΜΙΑ

ΑΘΗΝΩΝ

Inscriptions L

By Hicks M.A.

Oxford

1882

α. 105