PRAYER OF THE PATRIARCH OF ALEXANDRIA.

His Beatitude Christophoros, Patriarch of Alexandria, has written the following moving prayer, which he has ordered to be read at all services in the churches under his jurisdiction throughout the war.

"O Lord Christ, who suffered and rose again for us, who takest unceasing thought for our salvation, who chastenest us and fostorest us, who allowest us never to be tried beyond our strength, who desirest not the death of a sinner, but rather that he turn from his wickedness and live, we, poor miserable sinners, pray and implore Thee to cast Thy glance, O Lord, upon the whole race of man, torn by the most frightful of wars. Have mercy on us, who trust only in Thee. Save and defend us from the total and irremediable disaster that threatens us. Bruise the head of the hosts of the Evil One, which multiply by thy will, which plot against all that exists under Heaven, and which seek to swallow us up. Lighten the darkness of all the peoples at war, and make the message of Good-will to be heard by all those who govern the peoples of all lands. Make all nations, and those that rule them, united in common accord, awake to see the fearful abyss of universal destruction into which they have been flung by the influence of the Devil, and make them turn again to the fear of God, in faith and in hope in Thee, and in the brotherly love of each to each. Heal us through the intercession of our all-holy Lady, Mother of God, the all-blessed Virgin Mary, our only pure and spotless Protectress, through the prayers of all the powers of churches have not allowed themselves to be overwhelmed

In a circular the Patriarch of Alexandria advises that the English clergy should not be invited by the Orthodox clergy within the jurisdiction of the Patriarchate to hold religious services for so long as the union of the two churches is not an accomplished fact, and that efforts should only be made to speed up the union.
